

Warwickshire Geological Conservation Group (WGCG)
Local Geological Site - LGS 64 Marsh Farm, Update 26 Apr 2019

Brief Description:

Exposures of the sand and gravels of the second terrace of the River Avon

Monitoring Report:

- This monitoring visit was undertaken after the proposal from Cemex to have an interpretation board at the site.
- The site is no longer accessible as it is beyond the fence erected by Highways England as a barrier between the old quarry and the A46. The fence is along the top of the bank above the old face at the edge of the quarry which was the location of LG S64.
- This face is not accessible along its full length and so no alternative site is available.
- The ditch between the edge of the old quarry and the A46 is now completely vegetated with small trees, including the location of LGS 64.
- The site should be retained in the LGS listing as a matter of record but should now be recorded as inactive and should no longer be on the programme for condition monitoring.
- Needless to say there will be no interpretation board.
